Dear Jack:

I know that you were directly involved in -- and probably irritated at times by my efforts to cleanse Pulp Run. I'm not sure, though, that you ever saw the published outcome of it all. Here, for your archives, is a copy of the October 1973 Swarthmore College Bulletin containing the "Top Secret Slurry Caper." Angus Thuermer provided the title -- and the Bulletin editors the format of making the Top Secret into a rubber stamp.

STATINTL

Before I retire at the end of this month I thought I should bring you up to date on the state of Pulp Run. With the exception of one week back in 1973 (about which I wrote a memo to the stream has been running clean, clear and beautiful for three and a half years. The damage from Hurricane Agnes has been covered by new growth, as have the trees and saplings felled by beaver. Torrential rains, like those of the past two evenings, flood the stream, of course, but it quickly subsides. (The black top of North and South Parking don't hold the water long.) We in the Canoe Pool have been enjoying the various fruits that grow along the way in from Pulp Run -- red raspberries now (just outside the North entrance along the parkway), blackberries next, and then pawpaw and finally, in the fall, wild persimmon.

I'm proud, and grateful, for the way that Logistics responded to my quixotic campaign for environmental improvement. My thanks again.
